Greetings all,

I have some news regarding fishing in Mexico. They are rolling out their online FMT permit (Known as a Visa) process required for fishing in Mexican waters. I just got back from a meeting with the National Immigration Institute of Mexico and Mexico Tourism Board regarding the new on-line procedures for entering Mexican waters by sea. The meeting applied to “anyone fishing in Mexico’s waters.” I would rather give you the facts of what affects us when you go in the Mexican waters rather than the complaints that seemed to repeat themselves, with no real solution in sight. With that said, it is now required for you “the boat captain” to have a FMT permit for all members on your boat that go into Mexican waters.

San Diego Rod and Reel Club

I know some have stated that if we are 12 miles out, you would not need a FMT permit, but we were informed of how they divide up their water zones and what is required. There are two types of waters zones in all countries, including Mexico and USA. The first zone is from the coast and up to 12 miles out, and is considered entering into a country borders. The Second zone is the 12 miles and beyond zone, which is considered a countries economic zone, but not entering into their boarders. Regardless of the zone you are fishing in, you have to have a FMT Permit.

They stated that the FMT permit is not something new, even though it seems new to us. They have just decided to enforce it. They have made it a little easier for us to get the FMT permit by going online and completing the following steps:

1) Go to the webpage “www.inm.gob.mx” and then click on the icon labeled “Sport Fishing and Nautical Tourism”. On this page, the captain of the boat must fill in all the names of occupants on the boat. A fee of 295 pesos ($23) will be charged per person on the boat. They will create a manifest of the occupants, which will be emailed to you in PDF format.

2) In order to pay this fee for everyone on your boat, you have to go to “www.banjercito.com.mx/regist-roembarques” and pay with Visa or MasterCard, from which you will get another PDF emailed to you.

(619) 277-0255

3) Now, if that was not completely fun, you then have to email the INM at “bc_ensenada@inami.gob.mx” and attach both documents to get the FMT permit.

4) Ok, we are still not done... so within 5 hours (even though they have 48 hours) you will get an email with the FMP permit, also in the form of a PDF.

As you can imagine, the sport boats community was not happy with that. Hard to do business when you have to have everyone on the boat logged 48 hours before it leaves in order to get the FMT permit. The good news (if you allow me to use the word “good”) is that the immigration office understands the issue. Until they fix the speed of them processing the FMT permit, they are only requiring the PDF of the payment as proof of FMP permit for now. They are hoping to improve the process quickly, but admit it might take several years and that is why they are only requiring the payment PDF.

Now, if that was not enough - we are still not done - your passengers will be required to have a document with a picture on it that is used for international travel. The immigration office would not deny or agree that a valid CA driver's license or birth certificate was proof enough, but they did say a passport would work for sure. Oh, and of course, you do need a Mexican fishing permit.

I have posted on our website under member's area a PDF that has step by step pictures and directions on how to apply for the permit, as well as information about it.

I hope this clears up what is now required and look forward to seeing you at the meeting in November.

Officer elections are in December. Here is a quick review of what is requested to be on the board:

You should be in our club for at least one year. We ask for a three year commitment, but some do more, others do less. The board meetings are always the Tuesday after our Club meeting at 6:30 at the Bali Hai. The meeting usually is over before 8pm. We have several events that we run throughout the year and ask for you to try to attend half of them. Major events are the Fred Hall Show, Day at the Docks, Big Fish, and four kids events.

Each officer also has their own specialized duties. At the back of the bulletin is a copy of the board positions and their responsibilities. In some cases the board positions are chosen or requested. So, if you have an interest in a particular position, let us know and we will hook you up with that board member.

Your club needs you and your ideas, give it some thought and I look forward to seeing you at the next meeting on November 7th at the Bali Hai.

Happy fishing,

Alex Williamson

We all enjoyed the presentation and gifts provided by Darin Dohi, General Manager of Seeker Rods, at our last meeting. He gave a great presentation with a lot of information that we were able to see, hear, touch and understand. What a wealth of information he gave us.

We have a very interesting presentation scheduled for our next meeting. Richard Imamura will be speaking about a movie documentary that he wrote and produced entitled, "The Manzanar Fishing Club." See more info about the movie at: <http://www.fearnotrout.com/>

The documentary began as a lecture, walking tour and artifacts exhibit to raise awareness of the internees who slipped away under the cover of night to find freedom and adventure matching wits with the prized trout of the Sierra Nevada's high-altitude lakes and streams. Many of the members of the production team are anglers themselves, including Richard. The film includes interviews with the surviving internee fishermen. Richard's script brought together the fact that all of the fishermen's stories touched, in one way or another, on a yearning to be free.

Richard Imamura is a longtime editor/journalist and writer in the entertainment industry. Starting with local newspapers (South Bay Daily Breeze, Gardena Valley News), he went on to become the first (and only) Asian-American editor of a major international music industry trade magazine (Cashbox) and the founding editor of Inside Kung-Fu magazine.

Richard's parents and paternal grandparents were interned at the Gila River camp in Arizona. (His parents met at Gila River.) His father went on to serve with the 442nd Regimental Combat Team in France and Italy. As a prominent member of the Japanese community on Maui, Hawaii, Imamura's maternal grandfather was incarcerated without charges by the military for nearly a year after the Pearl Harbor attack. Note that our fellow member Mike Ito's parents were placed in an internment camp for Japanese Americans during WWII. Despite this treatment, Mike's father fought in WWII in Europe and was recently, posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor.

Hello FCM's,

Hope all who attended last month's meeting took advantage of joining the club and received your raffle tickets. Our November raffle will follow the same format... those that already signed up as a club member will receive 40 raffle tickets and those who sign-up in November will also get their 40 tickets.

This is our way for club members to win something in the raffle as a thank you for joining. We as board members want to give back to our members and show our appreciation. Of course, if you buy more tickets to support your club, you have more chances to win. Hope to see everyone at the meeting.

Daryl White provided me an excerpt from Western Outdoor News (one of our continuous sponsors ... support our sponsors!). This is an expansion regarding what's going on with Mexico and how Ken Franke is getting involved:

“Boaters can visit inm.gob.mx to apply for, purchase and print out a $23 185-day, single-entry tourist permit, which will allow them to fish aboard their U.S. boat in Mexican waters from 0-12 miles from shore or land masses. As before, Mexican fishing licenses and passports are also required for those aboard.

Although currently the only document that can be used in the permit process is a passport, Sporfishing Association of California president Ken Franke and other U.S. representatives are working toward expanding options.

“We'd like to make it so that you could use any form of government issued I.D. -- like birth certificates and driver's licenses,” Franke said.

He believes that the option will boost the number of people who cross the border to fish in Mexico.

“What they're also considering is a multiple-entry document, which would offer a savings to those who want to do (several) quick trips.” Currently, each permit expires when the permit holder leaves Mexican waters.

“Overall, frankly speaking, this is a good thing,” Franke said. “These are changing times, and we're encouraging people to visit Mexico both by water and land. There's a strong spirit of cooperation toward getting the country's tourism back on track.” “

Now, about fishing. Although the water is starting to cool down, the long range boats are still hitting good numbers. Whenever you go on these trips, be sure to wear your SDRRC attire to promote your club. Not just by wearing it, but by talking about the club to others as well. Then, invite them to our next meeting.

Anyhow, I finally got my boat up and running again (and it didn't cost me anything ... ask me how and I'll tell you how stupid I am!!!). We headed out to the Tuna Pens about 65 miles South and met up with 6 – 7 foot swells. We decided to drift baits in a fishy spot and I experienced a first... we were stern heavy with 20 gallons of extra fuel and 2 college buddies & I back there as well. I was taking out dead bait from my side bait tank when all of a sudden, our stern heavy, non-buoyant boat, took a 6 footer off the stern and drenched me and my friends from head to toe! At least it was a very warm day and we were able to dry off quickly. Needless to say, we only trolled from there on out! We ended up with only 2 fish for the day, but enough to go around.

I also took the boat out on the 26th with a couple of my wife's friends from Panama. Of course, we can't compare our fishing to theirs, but they wanted to go out anyway. I tried the squid grounds (along with a dozen other boats) and only found mackerel chasing a lot of small bait. We drifted the area for 2 hours for nothing ... and nobody else was hooking up either. So, we headed out for some rock fish and got into a good bite of Vermilions and other species. The heaviest fish was a large male Sheepshead. They had never seen anything like it, and they certainly enjoyed its table fare. So Good!

By the way, rates have dropped since last month. So, if you think you lost your opportunity, contact me to see if things make sense. I have done quite a few loans for our fellow members and I keep everything confidential.

Now ... Get Bent!

SURF FISH & MANGROVE FISHING AT LA BOCANA, MX

MY PERSONAL BEST CORBINA

By: Alan Beilstein

I just got back from a cool trip to La Bocana. We had never been there before and we wanted to check it out, so what the heck - let's go!

We could only squeeze in 3 days of fishing, so Cliff's panga stayed at the San Quintin house. We figured we would just do a mostly surf fishing trip, as we knew from last year that my boat partner Kirk and his friend Marshall had stellar Corbina, Spotfin and Halibut catches all the way down from Guerrero Negro to La Bocana this same time last year.

Uneventful trip down as usual- no banditos, no shady characters, just nice folks everywhere. As usual, nobody was checking any papers down or back at Guerrero. We spent the first night at Cliff's in Socorro and celebrated anything and everything with Ribeyes & Lobster that night. Up really early for the long run to La Bocana by way of Aberejos-- took about 7 hours to get there from SQ.

It's all paved to Aberejos, with diesel & gas readily available there. It's 8 miles north on the very flat and smooth salt flats to La Bocana.

Arriving there we noticed some brand new cabanas and restaurant/bar right at the Bocana entrance... Hmmm, we weren't expecting this! Wow, brand spankin' new, just built by the local cooperativo. Very, very nice. I guess our timing was right, they had only been open 3 weeks. So for $50 a night, the 3 of us had a cabana 100' from the water. They let Pepe bring in his cot and we were good to go.

The food at the restaurant was very good, reasonably priced for it being about the only option in town-- especially when you have satellite TV and WiFi!! And with an AT&T cell phone, I was in direct contact with the world (if I so desired). But this place had about every type of fishing you wanted. We were the only people there and had the bar & restaurant staff to ourselves each night. Got to know them very well - all nice kids. The chef was trained in culinary school in Ensenada and she cooked up some great dishes each day.

We surf fished 2 days to the north of town. You had miles & miles of pristine beach all to yourselves. The water was crystal clear and the water was around 73 degrees and the air temp low 80's with no swell and little wind all week! I love the fall in Baja!!

We were kind of lazy on the 2 surf fishing days and didn't hit it real hard, only fishing about 3 hours a day! I know, but we were "takin' it easy, San Quintin"!! (inside joke). We caught smallish to medium Corbina, but I nailed a large personal best.. I didn't measure exactly, but this mama was way larger than any San Diego Corbina I've ever caught. I think it was conservatively 26" and really smoked my light tackle drag! We also caught small small Halibut, and spotties and yellowfin croaker at the launch ramp later in the day.

We hired the infamous Juanchy to take us in the Estero for Juvenile Grouper. He insists on catch and release on all fish caught in the Estero. I say good for him! BTW he's a crazy (but real nice) guy. We ate at his brother's man-cave one night and Juaquin fixed up an amazing dinner of fresh yellowtail.

We must have caught about 20 grouper all on netted smelt, but must have lost another 20 to the rocks.... yes they were hunkered down close to some razor sharp rocks and man it was tough to get them off the rocks... very fun though. I also think that if one had the time in a small aluminum, you could go down deep into the Estero and catch many Halibut in the sandy stretches, or if you want to try the mangrove fishing for the elusive snook, be prepared to lose some tackle in the roots!

All in all, an excellent trip. The people at La Bocana are the best!! I am in a lot of them because my friend Pepe is the camera Nazi, and Cliff hates his picture taken because he is the nicest grumpiest fishing friend you would want- but I got a picture of Cliff!

We also looked at the new Abalone breeding facility north of town. Wow, they are putting a bunch of bucks into that, but the story is that ONE can of the premier Abalone goes for $80 US in China... so you know where that and the lobster are going.. right? To the highest bidder! The co-op is very well managed and run. These guys take pride in their town and co-op and it definitely shows.

My hats off to all the LaBocana people we met down there-- they are a true example of Baja friendship and very good businessmen...

Last note: I don't know how the cabanas will fare when there's a major high tide and a nice chubasco... they are built on stilts, and they say they are protected, but check out the super high full moon tide from our porch!
